After high school, with a love of art already a permanent part of her personal suitcase, Pat headed off to study at the Fashion Institute of Technology (NYC) and the Buffalo State College, ever seeking a way to make a living through art.

A 35mm camera purchased to use on a trip to Europe in 1977 began her lifelong love of photography. While she found the views on her journeys inspirational, she constantly felt something was missing without a human subject; hence, people became the true inspiration for her work.

A portrait photographer now for over 25 years, Pat continues to be active in the Professional Photographers of America and the Professional Photographers Association of NJ, from which she has received many acknowledgements of excellence: PPANJ Portrait Photographer of the Year, Kodak Gallery Award of Excellence, and the Fuji Masterpiece Award.
